AWARENESS TOOLS

Objective	IMC Tools	Details
Create brand recognition	- Advertising: TV ads, radio ads, YouTube pre-rolls, digital display ads.	Broad reach to mass audiences; focuses on memorable slogans, visuals, and jingles.
Build visibility	- Social Media Marketing: Viral challenges, branded hashtags.	Encourages engagement through shareable content; hashtags like #ShotOniPhone create organic visibility.
Generate buzz	- Public Relations (PR): Press releases, media coverage, influencer mentions.	Announce new products or campaigns to the press, leveraging influencers for earned media coverage.
Drive discovery	- Content Marketing: Blogs, infographics, brand storytelling.	Provides educational or entertaining content to attract potential customers; builds SEO visibility.
Optimize visibility online	- Search Engine Marketing (SEM): Paid search ads, SEO strategies.	Paid ads appear on search engines; SEO ensures the brand ranks high in organic search results.
Catch attention in public	- Outdoor Advertising: Billboards, transit ads, posters.	Visually impactful in high-traffic areas, driving immediate attention.

Samsung spent $20 million on their Oscar ad campaign, including standard commercials. It also negotiated additional integration for their device, providing Ellen with the smartphone to use during the show as product placement. The selfie was retweeted 750.000 times in 45 minutes

Leveraged global visibility through sponsorship of a high-profile event. Samsung branding appears in

- Venue signage
- Broadcast credits
- Athlete/Celebrity selfie/interviews
- Event livestreams

Brand association with prestige

- Ties Samsung to the values of excellence, performance, and global unity.

The emotional appeal made the campaign go viral, which then boosted awareness.”

Modern brands blend awareness and appeal in one campaign — using billboards for mass visibility while videos, social media, and web content build emotional connection and brand love.

Samsung's Porsche taxi is appeal-driven in concept but ultimately delivered a bigger win in awareness than in deeply moving brand appeal.

- Millions saw the viral video = huge brand visibility.
- But it doesn't deeply shift people's emotions toward loving Samsung or strongly changing brand perception.

The Porsche Taxi campaign by ²⁶ Samsung in Bangkok was a creative stunt designed to create buzz and build an association with luxury, innovation, and surprise — qualities Samsung wanted to connect to its Galaxy S II smartphone.

Inside the taxi, passengers could experience the Galaxy S II firsthand, showcasing its features like:

- High-quality display:
Demonstrating apps, videos, and photos.
- Speed and performance:
Reinforced by the luxury and power of the Porsche, indirectly linking it to the phone's speed and innovation.

The agency looked at common Google search queries in Sweden related to relationship problems. It then selected products that can "solve" them, renamed them with those search queries, and added them to the Retail Therapy site.

Blogs like "Top 10 Extreme Sports Destinations" attract organic traffic through search engines, positioning Red Bull as a trusted authority in adventure and sports. Focused on brand visibility and search engine ranking, rather than emotional storytelling.

- Challenge: The phrase “Go back to Africa” is usually used as a racial slur.
- Idea: Reclaim the phrase. Instead of a slur, turn it into a travel invitation celebrating Africa’s beauty and culture. 31
- Execution: Used real social media posts with racist language, removing the hateful context and pairing the phrase “Go back to Africa” with stunning images of African destinations. Encouraged influencers/users to share their own African travel photos using #GoBackToAfrica, creating a sense of pride and community.

Transform a hateful phrase into a positive, empowering message about Black identity and travel.

Highlight Africa’s beauty and diversity as a tourism destination, especially for Black travelers.

Inspire pride, ownership, and connection with Africa among Black audiences.

Spark social discussion, media coverage, and viral sharing.

Establish Black & Abroad as a bold, culturally relevant, purpose-driven travel brand.

The campaign fosters an emotional connection with the audience, encouraging them to reflect on the sacrifices and mindset necessary for success

The "Real Beauty Sketches" highlights how their self-image differed from how others perceived them. Viewers found it moving and it made them feel like Dove really understood and cared about them (which in turn made them feel good about Dove).

Netflix’s stunts are primarily appeal-driven — thrilling, shocking, or humorous — and they effectively create awareness as a powerful side effect through viral sharing and media coverage.

The first live recipe service via WhatsApp

The Challenge

Hellmann's wanted to inspire new uses of mayonnaise as a cooking ingredient. But even with thousands of ways to learn new recipes, most people don't know what to cook with the ingredients they already have.

The Idea

A solution that was already in everyone's hands. A one to one, real time service via WhatsApp* that connected people to real chefs, who were prepared to teach how to cook using exactly what people had at home.

"the most used mobile app in Brazil present in 79% of smartphones"

How it works

People gave their numbers on our website, and real chefs got in touch with them. Then, just by the snap of a picture of their refrigerator, the chefs came up with a delicious new recipe with Hellmann's and taught the users how to cook using pictures, videos and other WhatsApp native options.

The results

Even being launched only on Hellmann's owned channels with less than US$ 900 media investment, WhatsCook charmed people and draw media attention for being an alternative recipe storytelling. In only 10 days, the service gained both national and international repercussion.

"Hellmann's developed an effective method to help hobby cooks."

Social Daily

"Could Hellmann's be the first brand to real WhatsApp with some real service design?"

"A great alternative to learn how to prepare delicious meals"

“What can I cook for dinner?”

38

“What do I cook with this?”

• Objective: Help consumers create meals using ingredients they already have in their fridge.

• Execution: Users sent pictures of their fridge contents via WhatsApp and received personalized recipes from professional chefs in real-time.

- Key Features:
- Direct interaction with consumers.
- Personalized, practical solutions for daily cooking challenges.

- Product Tutorials and Demonstrations: Guides on achieving various hairstyles using the Dyson Airwrap
- Technology and Engineering Insights: In-depth explanations of the engineering and technology behind Dyson products, highlighting innovation and design.
- Maintenance and Care Guides: Step-by-step instructions on cleaning and maintaining Dyson devices to ensure longevity and performance.
- Customer Testimonials and Case Studies: Real-life stories and feedback from users, showcasing experiences with Dyson products.
- Event Highlights and Announcements: Coverage of Dyson events, product launches, and company news.
- Educational Content: Informative videos on topics related to Dyson's areas of expertise, such as air quality and hair science.

- Nike releases limited-edition sneakers through the SNKRS⁴¹ app, often in collaboration with celebrities, athletes, or artists.
- These "drops" are announced with little notice via push notifications, and accompanied by a countdown timer, reinforcing a sense of urgency and scarcity.
- Gamification:
- Users participate in scavenger hunts, AR challenges, and interactive quizzes to unlock access to certain sneakers.
- Example: A "stash" feature in the app lets users unlock exclusive sneakers if they're physically present at a specific location.
- Personalized Experiences:
- The app tracks user preferences and offers tailored recommendation for upcoming releases, increasing the likelihood of action.

- Users had to download or use the Domino's app to participate in the campaign.
- The app included AI-powered photo recognition technology to identify whether the photo contained a pizza.
- Customers earned 10 points for each pizza photo they submitted, regardless of the brand.
- Once they collected 60 points, they could redeem them for a free Domino's pizza.
- The campaign gamified the ordering experience by allowing users to interact with the app in a fun and engaging way.

- Download the Burger King App
- Go Near a McDonald's Location: Using geofencing technology, the app detected when a user was within 600 feet of a McDonald's location. The app then unlocked the 1-cent Whopper deal.
- Order Through the App: The app provided directions to the nearest Burger King location to pick up the order.
- Payment and Redemption: Customers paid 1 cent via the app and redeemed their Whopper at the designated Burger King restaurant.

Targeted Advertising

Thai e-commerce brand JD Central's Valentine's Day campaign let girls drop gift hints to their partners via a chatbot that sent targeted ads to their boyfriends. The ads allows them to click through to the exact item and buy in time for Valentine's Day. Ultimately, the ads created a way for boyfriends to buy the right present for their girlfriends directly via Facebook ad.

- Market position: despite being a premium player in the hair dryer market, dyson faces the challenge of its high-priced flagship product, the 'dyson supersonic', making it intimidating for customers to try it in stores.
- Strategic placement: Dyson set up a 'Hair Rescue Station' with their premium Dyson Supersonic hair dryers at the 'Songkran Siam event, where people with wet hair are eager to try the product.
- Service: Offered free hair drying for participants to experience the high-quality dyson, leaving with dry, smooth hair and offer special deals to encourage purchases.
- Marketing Impact
 - Over 2,700 people used the service in 3 days.
 - Achieved over 2 million online impressions.
 - Generated significant organic buzz on Twitter, FB, IG, and TikTok.
 - Over 63,000 retweets and 400 quotes on Twitter.
 - 99% positive comments online.
 - Free media exposure through attendee reviews and shared stories

Stage	How Dyson Achieved It
Aware	Pop-up booth in a high-traffic festival grabs attention. Social media buzz and news coverage expand reach.
Appeal	Free hair rescue experience creates positive emotions and curiosity about the premium dryer’s quality and performance.
Ask	Visitors ask questions about price, technology, and features after trying the product.
Act	People physically try the Dyson Supersonic on-site. Some consider buying immediately, encouraged by special deals.
Advocate	Participants post selfies, videos, and reviews, sharing positive experiences online → drives word-of-mouth and social proof.
