

Social Influence

How thoughts, feelings, and behaviors of individuals are influenced by the social role and status, the presence and behaviors of others, and group norms

Social Role & Status

- The person's position in each group can be defined in terms of both role and status.
- A role defines behaviors/activities a person is expected to perform.
 - People have multiple roles to play.
 - In her company, she plays the role of a brand manager;
 - In her family, she plays the role of wife and mother;
 - at her favorite sporting events, she plays the role of avid fan.
- Each role carries a status which reflect the relative position of any member in a group
 - A vice president has more status than a sales manager
- People choose products that reflect and communicate their role and actual/desired status in society.

Buy what friends buy

What would you do in each of the following situation?

- On your Facebook feed, several friends share a great movie that has just come out.
- When you go to your friends' homes, they usually serve some unusual cocktails. This has become a talking point among your friends. Next week your friends are coming to your house.
- One of the other students in class, who is an expert on the computer, tells everyone about a great piece of software that has just come out, which automatically corrects spelling and grammar while you type.
- When you flick through IGs, you notice that several celebrities are wearing the same style of clothes.
- You start a new job. You dress very formally on the first day, but you notice that most other employees at your level dress more casually.

Group Influence

- Group influences a person's attitudes and behaviors (e.g. purchasing decisions) in overt and subtle ways
 - Every group establishes certain norms (a set of values, attitudes, behaviors a group deems appropriate). Group members are expected to comply with the norms.
 - Bandwagon effect: People tend to acquire a particular style, behavior, or attitude because other people are doing it, regardless of their own beliefs ("if everyone has it, I want it too")
 - Group think: people strive for consensus within a group.
 - Fear of exclusion (a need to be included): People generally do not want to be the odd one out.
 - FOMO - fear of missing out: an anxiety that you miss out an opportunity for important events others are experiencing
 - A desire to be right: People like to be on the winning team and to signal their social identity
 - Economize on the costs of info gathering.

Symptoms include:

- Late nights on the phone
- Checking the phone first thing in the morning
- Must-have highly active social life
- Obsessed with taking pictures

Why do you think groups might influence you on some, but not on all situations?

Which products are you likely to seek opinions of others?

Factors that influence consumer susceptibility to interpersonal influence

- Product

- Conspicuousness (visibility, public use)
- Complexity (technical knowledge)
- Level of interest/Involvement (high cost, impact, value, risk)

- Consumer

- Prior Information and experience
- Personality (e.g. self-confidence, susceptibility to social influence)

- Reference group

- Nature of the group (frequency of interaction, type of membership)
- Importance of the group, attitudes toward the group, Pressure to conform
- Credibility, attractiveness, and power of the group

Re: Abercrombie & Fitch Co. Brand Protection

Dear Mr. Cheeks:

I am reaching out to you on behalf of Abercrombie & Fitch Co. ("A&F") to address a matter with respect to one of the shows aired by MTV Networks, namely "Jersey Shore." We have been disturbed to see that one of the characters on the show, Michael Sorrentino (better known as "The Situation"), has been prominently wearing A&F clothing on a number of episodes aired to date this season.

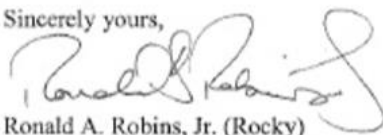

A&F obviously has not sought product placement on the show, and we believe that, since the character portrayed by Mr. Sorrentino is not brand appropriate, his display of A&F clothing could be misconstrued as an endorsement by him of our clothing or – worse – an endorsement by A&F of his wearing our clothing.

We have no interest at this point in pursuing any sort of legal action against MTV or the producers of "Jersey Shore." In fact, we would be willing to pay MTV or Mr. Sorrentino or other characters up to $10,000 NOT to wear any clothing bearing the "ABERCROMBIE & FITCH," "A&F," "FITCH," "MOOSE" or related trademarks. For additional episodes aired this season, we would appreciate it if you would ensure that our brands are pixilated or otherwise appropriately masked.

Please contact me at your earliest convenience to document this offer and resolve this matter.

Best regards,

Sincerely yours,

Ronald A. Robins, Jr. (Rocky)
Senior Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary

In his lawsuit, Sorrentino says that A&F's efforts to contact MTV were all part of a "marketing ploy. Even if MTV was contacted, the star says that such an offer was never conveyed to him

Virtual influencer

- Less Worrying About Sourcing Relevant Influencers no more negotiating incentives with influencers or spending hours trying to source influencers
- Brands Have Complete Control Over Influencer Image. Real-life influencers will impose their own image, values, and beliefs on your audience. A virtual influencer with the personality, look, and values that appeal to your audience exactly how you want it.
- No Physical or Technical Limitations no need to rely on real-world settings for the influencer to market your products.
- Less Controversial Risk. complete control of what these influencers say and how they say it.

Affiliate program

Affiliate marketing involves referring a product or service by sharing it on a blog, social media platform, podcast, or website. The affiliate earns a commission each time someone makes a purchase through the unique affiliate link associated with their recommendation.

Referral marketing implies a close relationship between parties. In affiliate marketing, there is no existing relationship between the affiliate and the referred person. The goal is to maximize profit.

Tribe

- A tribe is a group of people connected to one another through collective interests/behaviors rather than demographic traits. They join together to share ideas, experiences, to do some activities.
- Examples: vintage car lovers, star fanclub, politic club, cactus lovers, mom's club, pet lovers, reader, skater boy, buffet lovers in FACEBOOK GROUP and LINE OPENCHAT
- Tribal marketing
 - Find out tribes relevant to your product
 - Understand their unmet needs, and help them reach their goals better (not try to advertise or sponsor them with money)
 - Motorcycle tribe who usually ride together. What a brand can do is not to organize a meeting for them but do what they cannot e.g. find interesting place for them to ride, find experts to them ride better
 - Support the tribe to grow more
 - GoPro first targets their super customer, and share the adventure experience to public

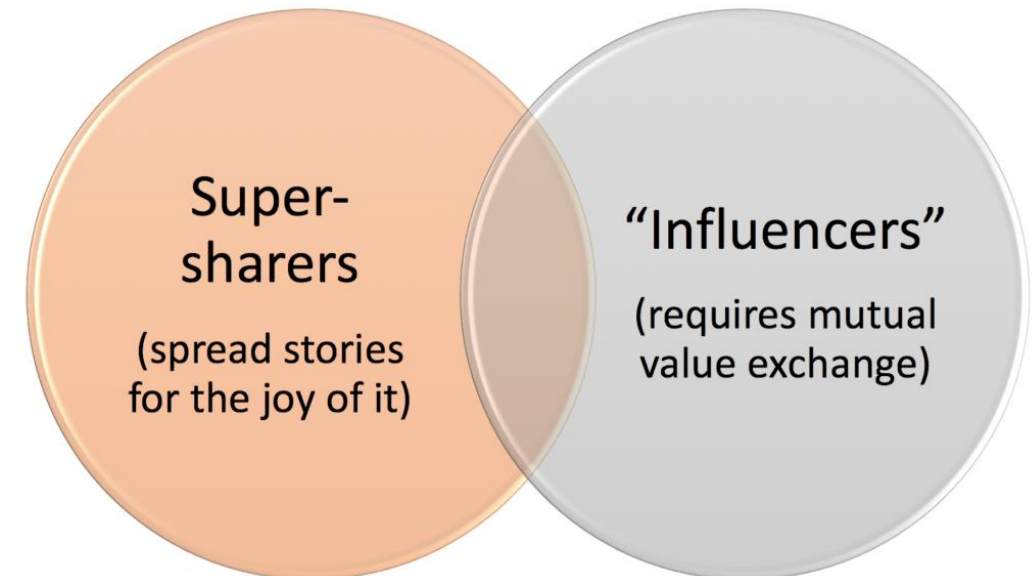

Friends

- Word of Mouth: Personal communication about a product/brand between buyers and their friends/family members via face-to-face or electronic channel (e.g. forum, blog, SNSs, consumer review sites)
- Unlike influencer marketing, WOM is less dependent on relationship between a company and the people spreading a story. WOM is considered organic, authentic, trustworthy, and ad-free.
- WOM is powerful as it is often backed by social pressure to conform
- WOM is controlled by your customers. If you try to stop it, WOM momentum increases. Negative WOM travels farther and faster than positive WOM.
- Creating an epic experience and referral rewards for customers to get some shouting about you and referring others

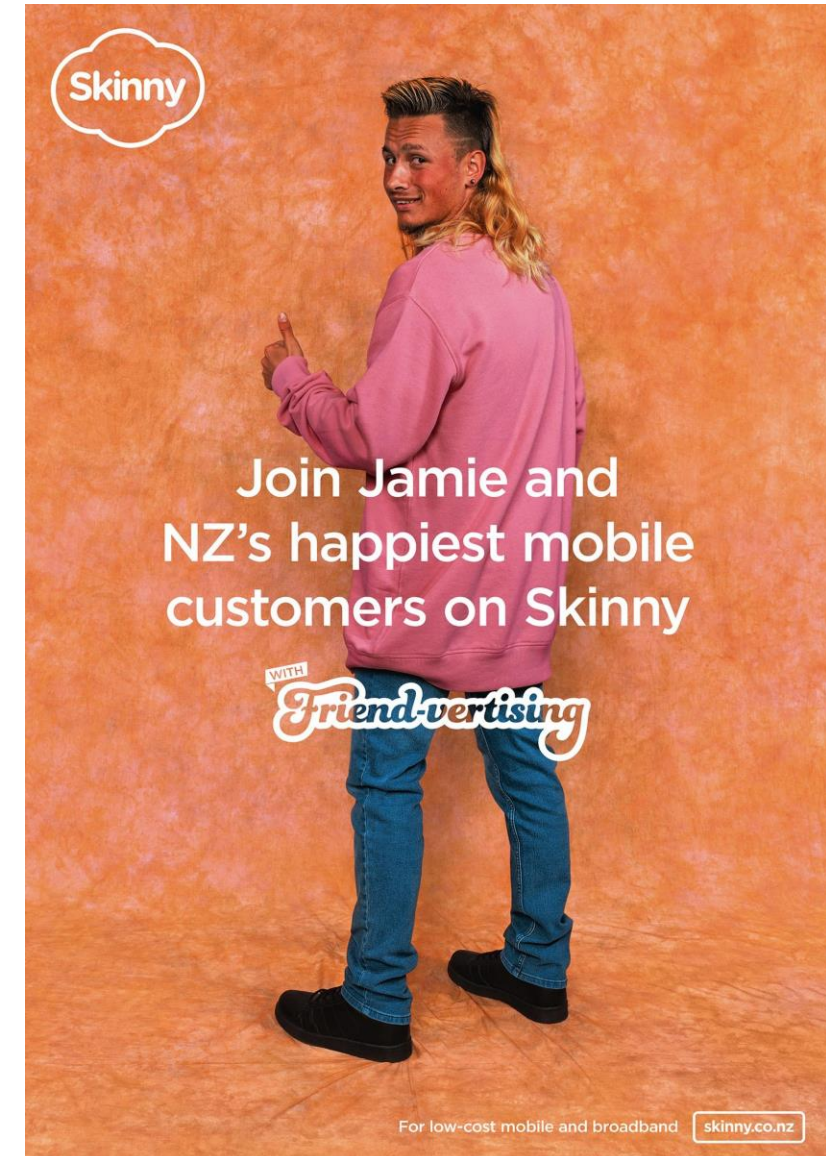

Projected overlap between WOMM/Influencers

'Friend-vertising' ads

- As word of mouth is 83% more effective than advertising, and that it seems like everyone in New Zealand knows someone who knows someone, New Zealand telco Skinny launched Friend-vertising campaign, a highly targeted direct campaign that operates at a national broadcast level, aiming to reach everyone in New Zealand with Hindi, Cantonese, Samoan, and Sign language.
- The TVC stars 46 happy Skinny customers, imploring their friends and family to join them on Skinny as its mobile network covers 98% of places Kiwis work and live.
- Out of home ads feature recognisable faces from the community and are geo-located to reach those who are most likely to recognise them.
- In social media, people can generate their own online ads, targeted to their friends and family.

Family

- A group of people related by birth, marriage and residing together

1. Pass on lifestyle and consumption values to their members

2. influential in consumption decisions

3. make several joint purchase decisions

- Household decision making is more complex
- May not accommodate all needs at the same time

Personal influences

Travel locations differ significantly across the life stages

Our needs and taste/preferences for goods and services change over our lifetime due to demographics and life-changing events (graduation, marriage, divorce, pregnancy, home moving, unemployed, retirement).

Marketing to kids (4-9 years)

- Kids represent an important demographic to marketers because they influence their parents' buying decisions and are the adult consumers of the future.
- Understand Users and Buyers/Government
 - Kids:
 - Attracted to things that offer fun
 - animal, game, character, adventure
 - user friendly (big handle toothbrush)
 - Buyers:
 - Safe
 - Burden
 - Government
 - Not target adult products to kids
 - Not trick kids

Why a teenage rock songs “Bad Boy” became more popular in kindergarten instead of high school, and now it has about 43 million views on YouTube.

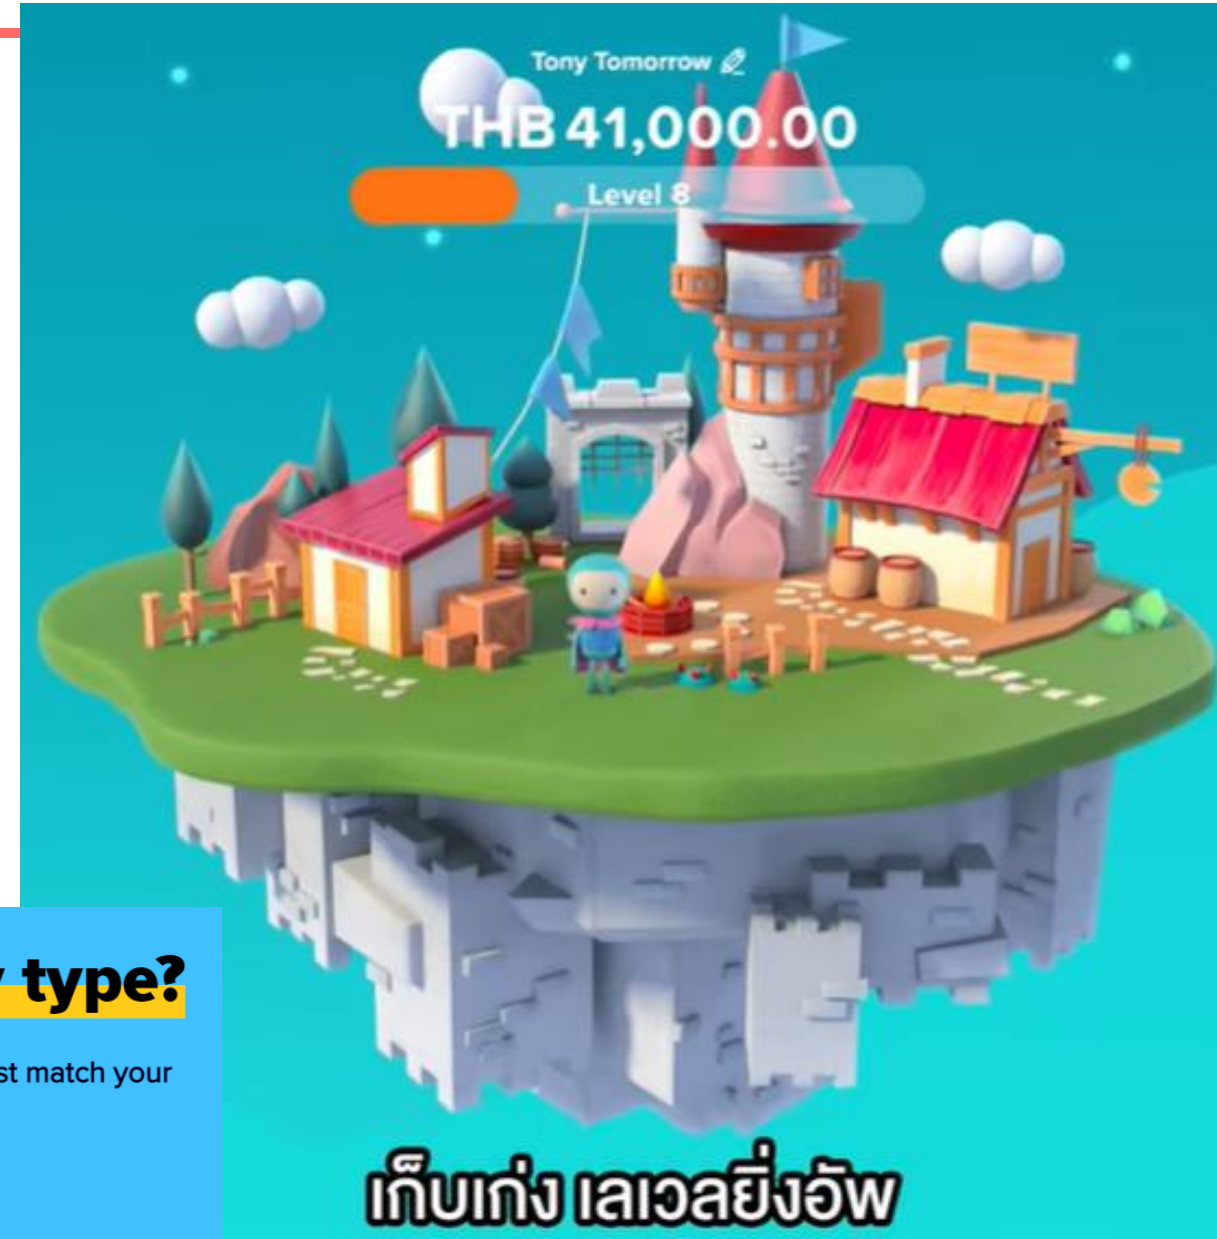

Marketing to Teens (10-17 years)

- Right message/offer
 - Though still young, they want and expect to be treated like young adults → Make sure your message is age appropriate
 - Short attention span → Messages should be short, attractive
 - The tastes and attitudes of teens are constantly changing → constantly change/add new contents
- Right influencer
 - By infusing ad content into the social content teens are choosing to follow, influencer marketing offers a less intrusive alternative to the ads many teens block.
 - Children “aspire up” in their behaviour, trying to “live a step or two ahead of where they are. Marketers should present older teens in the media, and desire aspects of their lifestyles and behaviours.
- Right time
 - Take advantage of trends in pop culture → connect a product to the trend
 - Less patient: Engage fast, be responsive to questions and feedback and communicate in real time.
- Right channel
 - When marketing to teens, reach teens where they are
 - Update the new platform: Teens prefer snapchat/IG/twitter more than FB

Marketing to the elderly (65 years-->)

Characteristics and needs

- Marketers don't see them as exciting target but silent generation.
- Physical limitations prevent use of some products
- Seniors want to be independent and self-reliant
- Seniors are very family oriented, and enjoy technology that will aid them in keeping close to loved ones
 - Not too complex, expensive
- Think a lot before spending but willing to pay more for their family members
- Don't think of themselves as old.
 - 30% of seniors say they will avoid a product that is marketed towards older, or disabled persons

What they look for

- Health consulting/insurance
- Retail store
 - Restaurants: menu with nutritional info
 - Wheelchair accessibility
 - Rest spot, Delivery and promotion
- Buy more
 - Trip, home renovation, eating out, sport equipment
 - Milk, Pet food, Rice, Soup/Functional drink, Moisturizer
- Buy less
 - Consumer package goods, fashion, home appliance, electronics, beauty
 - Creamer, Egg, MSG, Deodorant/soap, Oil/instant noodle
- Packaging
 - User friendly (easy to read, use, open)
 - Single-serving
 - Clear label

Good & Bad Practice

Personal Mobility Scooter

The ad does not:

- Mention any age or disabilities ✓
- Any ailment or inabilities

The ad does mention:

- Independence (3 times)
- Mobility
- Inclusion in family events
- Its all possible
- Free to see the world
- Ability to go where you want
- Improve quality of life

- Heinz Senior Food rebranded Gerber baby food as a product for people with dentures and chewing problems (campaign of the 1950's)
- It meets the need for soft foods
- BUT older people shied away from the product
 - don't want to stand in a checkout line with something that says you're a denture wearer.
 - perceived to symbolize old age, weakness and helplessness

Aging Suits

“aging suits” for young employees to wear when they’re designing automobiles. The suit simulates the restricted mobility and vision people experience as they get older. Car designers can then figure out how to configure the automobiles to better meet the needs of these consumers

Occupation

- Occupation determines lifestyle, income, products and services bought
 - Blue-collar a worker in manual labor. White-collar work a professional or educated worker in office positions. Blue-collar workers buy more rugged work clothes.
- Marketers try to identify the occupational groups that have an above-average interest in their products
 - Energy drink for the blue collar, athlete, office worker, students
- A company can even specialize in making products needed by a given occupational group
 - Students (uniform, shoe, bag, stationery)
 - Frequent flyer (luggage, travel organizer set, jet lag remedy, portable luggage scale)

Nurses walk 4-5 miles and sit for less than an hour during 12-hour shift. The shoe is easy to get on and off, and simple to clean. The fit, cushioning and traction systems work together to secure the foot in all hospital conditions.

Essence of chicken is for:

- Office workers who want to seize the day
- Drivers who need to focus on the roads
- Students who need to cope with their study schedule
- Seniors who want to be more active

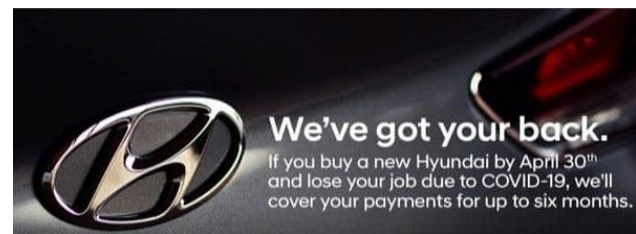

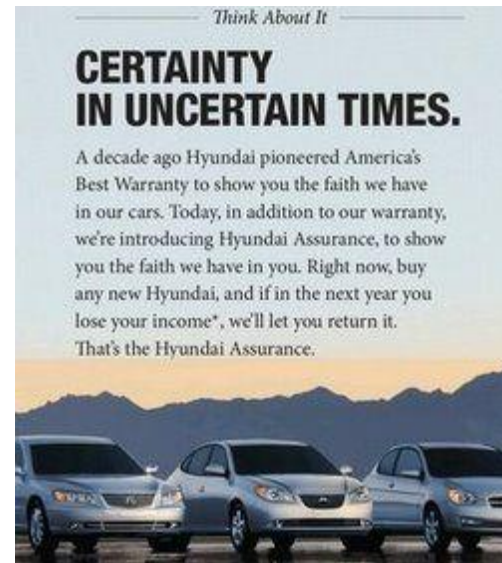

Regardless of one's occupation, one can succeed if you have a good will and health. 'Brand' would like to be a part that helps you become ready to do your best

Income

- An individual's economic situation, particularly their income or family income, will determine purchasing power, store/product choice
- A brand usually targets either low or high income people who seek products with low price/good value or higher quality/price.

- Marketers watch trends in personal income, savings, and interest rates.
- During the economic downturn, marketers may redesign, reposition, and reprice their products so they continue to offer value to target customers.
 - Hi-end brands create low-cost product line to serve money
 - Low-cost airline/hotel/fitness/car/supermarket – no frills product offering only essential features to keep price low
 - Firms offer zero/low interest, long term payment, return

No-frills Snap Fitness was perfectly positioned to weather the latest economic recession.

Current Financial behaviors

30-40 years who save/invest a lot

Spend a lot, not think about future

more money, no costs for kids

Earn a lot, Lavish lifestyle, no saving

Lifestyle & Products

- Lifestyle is a pattern of consumption, reflecting a person's choice of how one spends time and money, and allocate such resources to different products/service
- Products are the building blocks of lifestyles
 - Consumers don't just buy products; they buy the values and lifestyles those products represent. It reflects 'who I am' or who I want to be
- People of similar social and economic circumstances share common lifestyles and patterns of consumption
- Marketers try to position a product by fitting it into a desirable social setting

● Lifestyle: Triumph doesn't just sell motorcycles; it sells an independent, "Go your own way" lifestyle.

- Lifestyle brands inspire and motivate people, contributing to the definition of their way of life
- A brand become a lifestyle when it successfully extends beyond its original product category

Examples of Lifestyle

- Fluid lifestyle/Flex hours
 - Work anywhere anytime, multitasking, spontaneous life, less structured and organized, adapt to change, freelance, freedom, work-life balance
 - 24-hour retail store, Office car, Recreational Vehicle (RV)
- Lazy economy
 - Lazy to exercise, wait in queue, clean, read, cook
 - Home delivery, home service, automation/hands-free products, ready-to-use products
- Do it With me
 - People film themselves going about ordinary tasks like cooking, studying, cleaning, shopping, exercising, meditating.
 - Viewers turn to “with me” videos for company, in-depth information, and even motivation.
- Solo living
 - Some businesses have tried to meet the changing needs by enhancing grocery options, removing travel impediments or building more housing for one, smaller electric device, one-person restaurant.

The self-concept

- Individual perceptions of our behavior, abilities, and unique characteristics
- While personality is the way a person presents themselves outwardly, self-concept is how a person sees/feels about themselves inwardly.

Gaps among multiple selves

- Realizing the gap among different selves, consumers attempt to fill it via consumption
 - Use product/brand that contains desired image to get themselves closer to their ideal selves
 - A possession reflects the identity of the possessor, extend the self to the ideal self (extended self).
 - Make-up surgery, luxury products
